What are some barriers?

Climate

US Agriculture

U.S. farming practices aim to increase output and profits with little regard for nutrition.

Chemicals have contaminated natural resources and diets, contributing to a global climate crisis, stressing food systems even further.

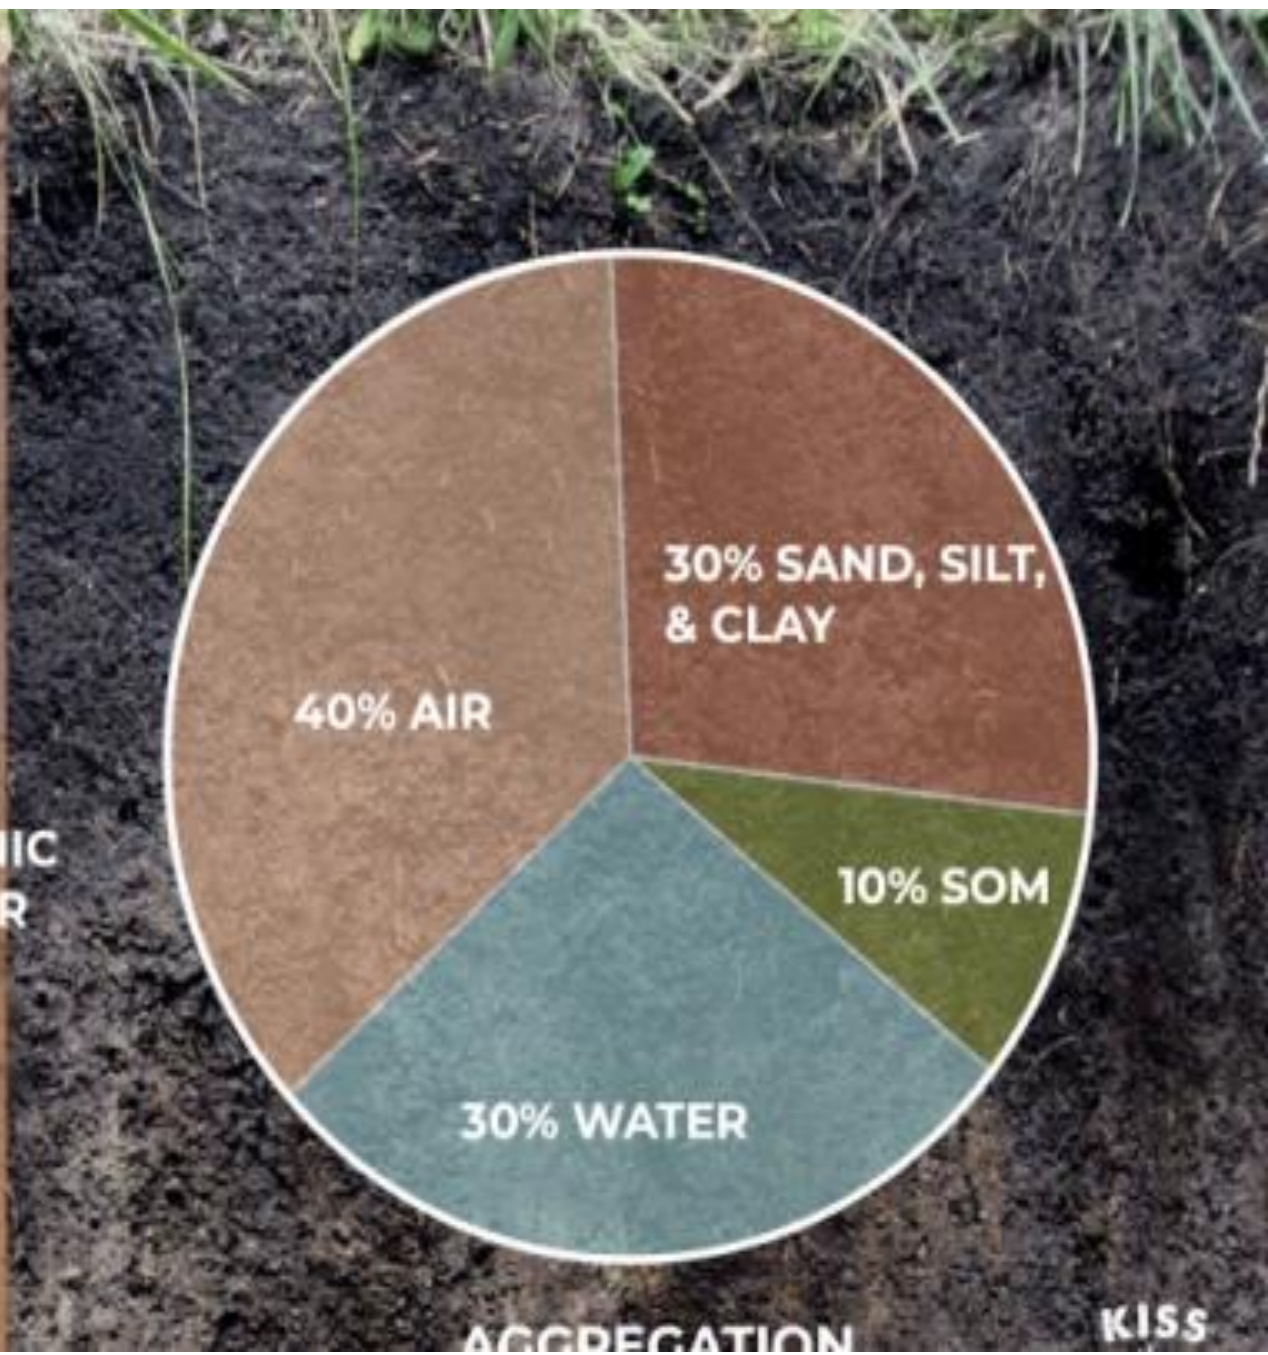

Without change, prospects for equal access to foods that support good health over the next 5-15 years are grim.

Corporate Farmers are receiving a major portion of subsidies and support from the Federal government.

A continuation of heavy inputs and mono cropping, an industry not showing any slow down.
