SUMMARY

Synopsis of Senate Memorial 16

Senate Memorial 16 asks the Legislature to consider establishing a task force to address the problems of alcohol and substance abuse. Evidence for the need of such a task force is given:

- Alcohol and substance abuse is common in New Mexico, including in Indian nations, tribes, and pueblos;
- Alcohol and substance abuse treatment services are badly needed in New Mexico;
- Cannabis legalization may have led to an increase in addiction to cannabis and other substances;
- Many people, relatives of those using substances, are harmed by their substance use; and
- Communities where substance abuse is common are heavily impacted by this problem.

The task force would be composed of nine members, the chair appointed by the secretary of DOH, and the other eight members by the majority and minority floor leaders in the house and senate, and would include members from various parts of the state; at least one member of an Indian nation, pueblo, or tribe; at least one member with experience in alcohol harm reduction; and one with expertise in medical and behavioral sciences. Of the eight, no more than four would be of a single political party. Members would receive per diem and mileage, but no other payments.

The task force would consider factors leading to addiction to substances, including alcohol, and would study factors leading to disparities in rates of substance use among various communities. It would look at the effect cannabis legalization has had on addiction to that or to other substances, and it would analyze data and make recommendations to the Legislature to reduce alcohol and substance abuse in New Mexico.

The task force would report to the Legislative Health and Human Services Committee no later than November 1 of each year.

This memorial does not contain an effective date and, as a result, would go into effect 90 days after the Legislature adjourns, or May 15, 2024, if enacted.

FISCAL IMPLICATIONS

There is no appropriation in Senate Memorial 16. There would be costs for per diem and mileage for each in-person meeting held by the task force.

SIGNIFICANT ISSUES

New Mexico has the highest alcohol-related death rate in the U.S, at 86.6 deaths per 100 thousand people (up from 66 per 100 thousand in 2016), compared to 41.5 nationally, in 2020. A DOH study shows alcohol abuse killed more than 1,800 New Mexicans under age 65 in 2020. More people died from that than from Covid-19 in the first year of the pandemic in this state.

Drug overdoses, largely but not entirely due to opiates, especially fentanyl, contributed another 766 deaths in 2020 alone.

Drug and alcohol use affects not only the addict but also members of his or her family and his or her community. Substance use by a parent is one of the more common “adverse childhood events” leading to premature morbidity and mortality among children in New Mexico. Communities are also affected by homelessness and by theft caused by substance use and the need to pay for the substances that are being used.
