SIGNIFICANT ISSUES

Animal cruelty is considered one of the more destructive ills in society; often linked with sociopathic behavior, cruel and abusive behavior toward animals reflects a severe lack of moral responsibility and social conscience. It can be inflicted in a wide variety of ways and can be rooted in a variety of causes. In turn, this disturbing and malicious behavior gravely infects and poisons our social fabric. Animal cruelty is sometimes linked with other criminal behavior such as gang activity, drugs, and violent anti-social behavior. Research has shown that people who behave cruelly toward animals are more likely to behave similarly toward humans.

71% of abused women report that their batterers have threatened to hurt/kill their pets and have done so.

25%-48% of battered women delay leaving an abusive situation for fear of what will happen to her pet if left behind.

40% of battered women report that they have been forced to participate in sexual acts with animals as part of their domestic terrorization.

WHAT WILL BE THE CONSEQUENCES OF NOT ENACTING THIS BILL

According to the AGO, The enforcement of the Animal Cruelty laws often take the combined resources of several agencies. For example a sting operation involving an illegal cockfighting operation might involve hundreds of offenders who are present at the cockfighting event to either bet on the outcome or who have roosters who are fighting. In order for law enforcement to have a successful operation it may take as many as 100 law enforcement personnel to arrest, secure and surveill all of the offenders. Often times the law enforcement personnel come from local departments with limited budgets for overtime and as a consequence have a difficult time participating in operations requiring most if not all their people used to participate in the operation. The result of not enacting this bill could act to the detriment of conducting these operations.
