SUMMARY

Synopsis of Bill

The Senate Finance Committee substitute for Senate Bill 17 requires PED to annually calculate a family income index (FII), or aggregated measure of household income for each individual public school, using TRD and HSD data. School districts with the highest FII schools will be eligible for FII funding, which will be distributed through the district. FII funds must be used for structured literacy interventions, evidence-based math instruction, and at-risk student interventions. The bill further requires PED to provide FII calculations and educational plans to LFC and LESC each year and requires TRD or HSD to work with PED in computing the FII based on tax return, family support, or census data. The effective date of this bill is July 1, 2021.

FISCAL IMPLICATIONS

This bill is a companion to HB2/HAFCS, which includes $20 million to PED from the public education reform fund (PERF) for implementation of FII in FY22 and FY23. Although funding is provided for the next two fiscal years, this bill would likely create recurring costs in subsequent years. This analysis assumes $10 million will be distributed to schools through the FII formula each year. FII is calculated as the average of the percentages of students with extremely low- and very low-household income levels within the school. In other words, a high FII value indicates a high percentage of students with extremely low household incomes.

Provisions of this bill would make 50 percent of public schools with the highest FII value eligible for an FII distribution. The distribution to each eligible FII school would be at least $20 thousand, or the school's proportionate share of the statewide $10 million appropriation (i.e. FII-eligible students in the school versus statewide FII-eligible student enrollment), whichever is greater. The bill also authorizes the Legislature to change the 50 percent threshold. Increasing the threshold would expand the number of eligible schools but decrease the amount of each FII distribution (and vice versa).

At $10 million, each eligible FII school would receive an average of $104.2 thousand for exclusive use at the school for specified interventions (See Attachments 1 and 2). Provisions of the bill would restrict the use of these funds as follows:

- At least one-third for evidence-based structured literacy interventions that have been shown to improve reading and writing achievement of students;
- At least one-third for evidence-based mathematics instruction and interventions, including educational programming for college and career readiness; and
- No more than one-third for various interventions for at-risk students.

Schools receiving less than $40 thousand from the FII distribution would not be restricted to these one-third spending limitations but must still use the funding for the same aforementioned purposes. FII distributions must also expand or improve a school's academic programs rather than replace funding for existing programs.

SIGNIFICANT ISSUES

The bill creates the following defined income categories, two of which are used to calculate the FII values for each school:

- Above average income, or greater than or equal to 225 percent of the federal poverty level;
- Moderate income, or between 185 percent and 225 percent of the federal poverty level;
- Low income, or between 130 percent and 185 percent of the federal poverty level;
- Very low income, or between 75 percent and 130 percent of the federal poverty level; and
- Extremely low income, or less than or equal to 75 percent of the federal poverty level.

The 2020 federal poverty level is $12.8 thousand for individuals or $44.1 thousand for a family of eight. The FII value for each public school based on the number of enrolled students categorized as having very low income and extremely low income. This would be calculated by dividing the number of students in each category by the public school's total enrollment to determine the percentage of students in each category. Each public school's FII would be as follows:

- For FY22, the sum of the percentages of the public school's students in the extremely low and very low income categories during the preceding fiscal year;
- For FY23, the average of the sum of the percentages of the public school's students in the extremely low and very low income categories during the immediately preceding two fiscal years; and

- For FY24 and each subsequent fiscal year, the average of sum of the percentages of the public school's students in the extremely low and very low income categories during the immediately preceding three fiscal years.

PED would rank all public schools in the state from lowest FII to highest FII by October 31 of each year and report the percentage of students at each public school in each income category to LESC and LFC by November 15 of each year. The bill makes the top 50 percent of FII schools eligible for a distribution but further sets a cap of one-tenth of schools that can receive a distribution in each district. As such, some schools with FII values within the top 50 percent may not receive a distribution given the one-tenth limitation of awards to schools per district.

The uses for FII funding in this bill largely mirror uses for funding generated by the public school funding formula's at-risk index. The current at-risk index is based on the three-year average of three indicators: the percentage of student membership used to calculate a school district's Title I allocation, the percentage of students that are English learners, and student mobility. These indicators are added together and multiplied by a cost differential factor to calculate program units. PED notes, unlike the at-risk index, which is based on district-level data and is distributed at the district level, the FII uses school-level data and would distribute funds to be used at the school level.

The at-risk index cost differential factor has increase significantly in recent years, from 0.0915 in FY14 to 0.3 in FY21. Additionally, the Legislature has increased at-risk funding in the formula by $219 million over that same period. The court ruling in the Yazzie and Martinez case did not consider the state's efforts to increase to the at-risk index, but noted an at-risk index factor between 0.25 and 0.5 would be reasonable.

PERFORMANCE IMPLICATIONS

PED notes concentrated poverty impacts student academic performance and other indicators. According to the National Coalition on School Diversity, "Concentrated poverty in schools creates and sustains disparities in academic outcomes. High concentrations of students living in poverty complicate learning and teaching in schools, and reduce the effectiveness of other educational interventions designed to address gaps in academic outcomes." And, according to the National Bureau of Economic Research, "the robustness of patterns across a variety of settings is compelling evidence of a real positive causal relationship between increased school spending and student outcomes on average."

ADMINISTRATIVE IMPLICATIONS

PED notes provisions of this bill would require school districts to identify which interventions will be supported with FII funds in their PED-approved educational plan in order to be eligible for funding. Subsequently, a school district that receives a FII distribution will be required to provide a description of how each public school used FII funding and the way in which it impacted student academic outcomes. PED would be required to evaluate how each public school used its funding and the way it impacted student academic outcomes and report to the LFC and LESC by October 15 of each year beginning in FY22.

Additionally, PED notes the bill allow districts to use FII funds to expand or improve services provided as part of a public school's existing academic program, but not replace existing services.

COMPANIONSHIP, RELATIONSHIP

This bill is a companion to HB2/HAFCS, which includes $20 million to PED “for the family income index contingent on enactment of legislation in the first session of the fifty-fifth legislature creating a formula that calculates an index of family income levels for students at each public school. No more than $10 million from this appropriation may be expended in FY21 and FY22 and no more than $10 million from this appropriation may be expended in FY23. The other state funds appropriation is from the public education reform fund.

This bill also relates to House Bill 135, which requires PED to work with experts to develop a new at-risk index.

OTHER SUBSTANTIVE ISSUES

On February 14, 2019, the 1st Judicial District Court issued a final judgment and order on the consolidated Martinez v. New Mexico and Yazzie v. New Mexico education sufficiency lawsuits, and found that New Mexico’s public education system failed to provide a constitutionally sufficient education for at-risk students, particularly English language learners, Native American students, and special education students. The court’s findings suggested overall public school funding levels, financing methods, and PED oversight were deficient. As such, the court enjoined the state to provide sufficient resources, including instructional materials, properly trained staff, and curricular offerings, necessary for providing the opportunity for a sufficient education for all at-risk students.

Additionally, the court noted the state would need a system of accountability to measure whether the programs and services actually provided the opportunity for a sound basic education and to assure that local school districts spent funds provided in a way that efficiently and effectively met the needs of at-risk students. However, the court stopped short of prescribing specific remedies and deferred decisions on how to achieve education sufficiency to the legislative and executive branch instead.

The FII calculation uses the average percentage of public school students in the extremely and very low income categories, which could mask the severity of poverty between schools. For example, if School A had 60 percent extremely low income students and 40 percent very low income students, the FII would be the average: 50 percent. If School B had 20 percent extremely low income students and 80 percent very low income students, the FII would also be 50 percent, despite having fewer extremely low income students than School A.

ALTERNATIVES

Because FII funding uses are similar to the at-risk index funding uses, the Legislature could replace the Title I eligibility component of the at-risk index with FII values. This swap would allow PED to allocate at-risk dollars based on individual schools through the funding formula.

The executive FY22 budget recommendation includes $80 million from the public education reform fund for FII, which would significantly increase the variation in FII distributions.

WHAT WILL BE THE CONSEQUENCES OF NOT ENACTING THIS BILL

Not enacting the bill would remove the $20 million appropriation for FII in HB2/HAFCS.
